

How Early Can You Detect Your Baby Gender?

Is there any specific method to predict baby gender? Well, as far as I'm concerned the only accurate method is the ultrasound scan. Yes, it is very true, but do you know that the ultrasound scan can only give you the accurate result when your pregnancy is over six months old? That is a very long time! What if you want a fast result?

To give you the answer I will go back to our old wives' tales and myths that cannot be proven scientifically but always give us the result we want and that is by looking at the symptoms of your pregnancy. It is always fun to try this method in the very early stage of pregnancy while waiting for six months to test whether you are right or wrong through the ultrasound scan.

One of the symptoms that is very well known to predict your baby sex is through your cravings. It is said that if you are craving sweet like chocolate or candy, then most likely your baby will be a girl. On the other hand, if you are craving for something sour like raw orange, most likely your baby will be a boy.

Some other method that is proven to be effective is acne. If you suffer a break out in severe acne, most likely your baby will be a girl and if your acne is mild, then most likely you will have a baby boy.

The most common symptom and the most well known to everybody is the morning sickness. If you are severely sick and vomiting a lot and always have it in the morning, you will have a baby boy, otherwise if your morning sickness is very mild and always happens at night you will have a baby girl.

Another symptom (this is quite funny!) that can be used to predict your baby gender is by looking at your body hair. It is believed that you will grow body hair especially around your abdomen and along your legs if you are conceiving a boy, or else you don't have to worry if you are conceiving a baby girl because nothing will happen. But not to worry about your hairy body, I have seen this happen in my life. The hair will be gone soon after you give birth.

About the Author

Are you tired and frustrated when all of your children are of the same gender or you want to choose a specific gender for your first or youngest child? Or you need some clues on how to predict the gender of your baby? Well, you have found the right place, be sure to visit my blog, determinebabysex for helpful tips and advice on choosing the sex of your baby. Plus, discover the one thing you should know while pregnant, click here to learn more and much more.

Source: <http://buildyourownempire.net>